

Jiri Honajzer has committed to play tennis for New York University (NYU) starting in the fall of 2014. Jiri moved to the academy two years ago from the Czech Republic and has shown a great desire to succeed in both his tennis and academics. He is an extremely hard worker and a very respectful and coachable student who is eager to learn. An aggressive all court player with a strong forehand, Jiri is sure to help NYU have success throughout his entire collegiate career. We are so proud of Jiri getting accepted into the New York University as well as its prestigious School of Business and know he will have great success in both his tennis, academics, and other passions in the future. We look forward to following his career!
